London Photobooths Photography & Video Policy

Use of personal imagery (photography and film)

We have a legitimate interest in taking photographs and filming as part of our service(s).

We respect your privacy and believe that you should have a choice about how your images are used. We will ask for your consent to publish any images of you taken at an event where we feel that participants may not reasonably expect filming or photography to take place.

How will my image be used?

We will use your images for promotion of the business.

We may also use your images on our website, on social media, in e-newsletters, in leaflets, posters, presentation and to provide local media for newspaper adverts/articles.

With your consent we may also share your images on request with named third-party organisations for promotional purposes.

What happens if I agree and later change my mind?

You can withdraw your consent at any time by contacting info@london-photobooths.co.uk. We will take reasonable steps to delete your image including removing it from our website or social media accounts. Please note that withdrawing your consent does not mean that any use of your images based on your consent prior to its withdrawal would be unlawful.

How long will you retain my images?

We normally retain images for ten years unless you withdraw your consent prior to that date. After this time, we will review all images and they will be deleted or archived if they reflect important events in our history or that of public interest.

Further information about how we use your personal information and your individual rights can be found in our Privacy Notice which can also be viewed on our website at www.london-photobooths.co.uk
